

Kyle Kimball is vice president of Government Relations for Consolidated Edison. Mr. Kimball joined Con Edison in June 2015.

In 2013, Mr. Kimball was appointed president of the New York City Economic Development Corporation (NYCEDC) by Mayor Michael Bloomberg, and later reappointed by Mayor Bill de Blasio. In that position, he oversaw billions of dollars in capital infrastructure investments and implemented several of the city's most ambitious commercial and housing real estate development projects. He also led efforts to strengthen the city's economy by attracting new industries, growing local companies, and expanding entrepreneurship and educational opportunities.

Prior to joining NYCEDC, Mr. Kimball worked at Goldman, Sachs & Co. as vice president in the Americas Financing Group, and at J.P. Morgan, also as a vice president, in corporate capital markets.

Mr. Kimball is a 1995 graduate of Harvard. He also received a master's degree in Public Policy from Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government in 1998.

Originally from Lawrence, Kansas, Mr. Kimball now lives in Park Slope, Brooklyn.